

Wrong Way Wednesday | Jan. 6, 2016

Solution:

Okay, so maybe if your customer is using water jugs to capture waste oil, good housekeeping and spill containment isn't at the top of their priority list. But who knows? Can't judge a book by its cover. Regardless, the scenario pictured in this week's Wrong Way Wednesday is not uncommon.

Not everything is stored in 55-gallon drums and for those smaller containers we have a number of solutions. One of the most popular is the Ultra-Utility Trays.

These heavy-duty polyethylene trays are available in 6 different sizes for almost any application. They can be used for oil cans, gas cans, other smaller liquid containers or for leaky parts, tools or machinery. They can also be used as catch pans under trucks and other vehicles.

Whatever the application, the Ultra-Utility Trays are a quick, easy and economical solution. And they're covered under our industry-leading five year warranty! Check 'em out!

And now you know. Happy Wednesday!
