

Wrong Way Wednesday | Dec. 2, 2015

Solution

Pop quiz: If you owned a tanker truck that carried thousands of gallons of fuel would you:

- A) Instruct your drivers to be super careful and NEVER spill anything?
- B) Pretend that spills never happen
- C) Outfit your truck with a spill response product or two?

Well, the “star” of today’s WWW apparently took choice B. Which, in case you didn’t know, is the wrong answer.

There are a number of solutions that would have been really helpful for this truck driver:

Ultra-Pop Up Pools can easily be stored inside of the cab of a truck and be ready to respond in a moment’s notice.

Ultra-Drain Seals could prevent the leaking gas from going down the drain.

Ultra-Containment Berm, Mini Foam Wall Model could be proactively setup prior to offloading the fuel to catch any spills or leaks.

And now you know. Happy Wednesday!
