74 INCHES OF SHEER CONTAINMENT!

In a city full of 55-gallon drums, a need for outdoor spill containment is inevitable. The hopes of a successful EPA inspection are in the hands of one man.

He's alone, tired... and the only chance anyone has got.

Critic's Corner

Paul Sander is a bad ass. Plain and simple. At first glance, he may look like an engineer but if you need outdoor spill containment that can withstand an aerial attack from a helicopter, Paul is your guy.

Mark Shaw is the icing on the cake of this immersive cinematic experience. I've always felt he was "believable" in his role as a "CEO" but as a rugged, Alaskan outdoorsman he's extraordinary. Pair that with the best hard wall in the industry and you've got instant blockbuster!

This movie had everything that I love... cold weather, snow and fuel tank containment! Ferguson and Phillips were good...very good. But it should come as no surprise that Taylor White steals the show! The Containment Sumps were as reliable on screen as they are in the field...a "shoe in" for Best Supporting Product!

Ryan Pulaski as little Kevin is SOOOO cute! Of course it helps that he's got that Foam Wall Berm as a co-star. That is easily the most adorable product in the Containment Berm line. With its squishy sidewalls and the way it folds... Oh! Where was I? Ryan is cute. Movie is great. Go see it.

Critic's Corner

Steel spill containment already excited me but wow! This movie brought me to a whole new level! In fact, I'm going to start training for a spot on Steel Team Seven!
