Wrong Way Wednesday

Solution

Ya know how in those crime dramas or suspenseful whodunit movies, there's the scene where the crime lab guys spray that chemical stuff to detect blood and it lights up the room? Today's WWW is the industrial version of that scenario.

I can just imagine these guys saying, "I don't need no spill containment. We don't never spill anything." Of course the paint all over the side of the drum tells a different story.

I couldn't have staged a better picture to demonstrate the need for an Ultra-Inline Spill Deck.

We designed this product for customers who want spill containment that stays against the wall and as out of the way as possible. In fact, an Inline Spill Deck wouldn't take up much more room than the current, non-compliant, setup. They're available in 3, 4, 5 and 6 drum configurations and, like our other Spill Decks, they're modular so you can add more decks as your needs increase.

And now you know. Happy Wednesday!
